

From the Diary of
Dr. Dante Alderman:

I once said that saving the world, like being a parent, is a never-ending battle between hope and regret.

But even now, as I approach that end, I have no greater regret than her.

I was wrong.
Of course it ends.

I tried to make her a new world, but I failed. This world stopped me.

IT IS ALMOST OVER.

Let me be forgiven
in the next one.

